WHY MAXBAT™ KICKS ASH

DEDICATION TO THE GAME

Simply put, nobody does it better than MaxBat, and it's easy to see why MaxBat is one of the most popular brands in professional, amateur and youth baseball worldwide. We do not compromise on wood quality, finish quality, or service. Unlike many other bat brands, your custom MaxBat is precision crafted and individually custom made from start to finish, right here in the USA by skilled craftsmen in our state-of-the-art facility in Brooten, Minnesota.

THE BATS

MaxBat uses only the strongest and hardest of hardwoods, grown in regions that produce the absolute best wood available. Only the straightest grained wood with zero defects in the stock can be used in MaxBat production. In fact, the raw materials used to make our bats are the most coveted in the industry and are absolutely worth the investment.

WIL MYERS ROOKIE OF THE YEAR

"The very first time I used a MaxBat was at the Perfect Game Underclass Showcase in Ft. Myers, FL during my junior year of high school. The ball came off the MaxBat harder than any other wood bat that I had ever swung before, and from that point forward it's been the only bat I've used. Every Perfect Game event that I went to I made sure to buy a MaxBat to use for the tournament. After the success and comfort I've had with MaxBats in both amateur and professional baseball, it's the only bat I'll swing."

YOUR BAT, YOUR SPECS.

AVAILABLE WOOD SPECIES

ROCK MAPLE

Maple continues to be the most popular wood species for bat production, and at MaxBat, we only use premium Rock Maple. Because it's such an extremely hard and dense wood, players remark that the ball jumps off the barrel of their maple MaxBat like no other. Maple bats are extremely hard, with little or no flex.

YELLOW BIRCH

Birch is a fibrous hardwood that many players prefer because in their words "is the perfect combination between Maple and Ash". Hard like Maple, with flex similar to Ash, this hardwood is growing in popularity at all levels of baseball.

NORTHERN WHITE ASH

Northern Ash had been the preferred hardwood used for bat production for close to a century, before Maple hit the scene in the late '90s. Ash is still a popular choice among baseball players because of its ability to flex more than other hardwoods. Players who prefer Ash typically choose this species for its flexibility at the point of contact with the baseball, producing what some describe as a springboard effect.

Originally an exclusive feature of the MBX, the flared design of the X Knob helps protect the hamate bone from bruising and greatly increases the bat's balance. The X Knob is available on any MaxBat model upon request.
